I was messaged via Facebook. People are lured with hypocritical arguments. I didn't get involved. 3 weeks later the second attempt, this time with insults. I would still be working at 65, etc. I would be stupid, etc. A person who doesn't know you.

Just think that there is a lot of pressure behind here ;)

Just keep your hands off, they're just pulling the money out of your pocket here.

Keep calling 24/7.

Keep calling 24/7.

When I tried to withdraw my money I got the barrel around and now they blocked me and still no money. This was the case until earlier this year

This is a scam... I am fortunate that my investment was relatively small. They urged me to invest more and more.

But nothing happened with my withdrawal request, I had no alternative but to use Marcbobich Gmail to facilitate my compensation.

To flee

Price a subscription for the promise of a service that never worked.
They made a billing error that they never refunded me.
Customer service absent as soon as the pb started.
To flee.

First you have to subscribe for a year in advance...

First you have to pay for a one-year subscription in advance, but the company with its headquarters in China has no right of return! So as soon as you transfer the money, it's gone! Buyer protection is not possible!

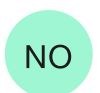

The lectures of the so-called Academy!! are often Saturday and Sunday afternoons when you want to rest! Also, the digital tips are almost useless!

I was cheated!

There he is again that Chris Nickel

There he is again that Chris Nickel. Next pyramid scheme. Next alibi product.

Everything has remained the same, not only the company address with a mailbox in Hong Kong, but also the attempt to always find a stupid one who accepts or resells the advertised alibi product, in this case a service consisting of inferior course offers and Shitcoin offers.

I can only expressly warn against this scam, because only the upper in their "upline" win here and the product offered is absolutely and maximally worthless.

Stay away from Swiss...

Stay away from some Swiss Ponzie crap like that.

Everything you see on social media with Swiss people is 99% junk and rip-off. Simply do your own research and not use monthly fees of 200 euros for what? 😂 to attend presales of scam ponzie shitcoins? Hahahahahaha young boy.

I regret that I paid €600 for the rubbish. The coin tips are probably rather thrown, the trading signals are not profitable and the private sales are any pump and dump coins. It's complete rubbish there and it's primarily just about making calls and finding new members. Stay away from this company. They are certainly not financial experts and you should not let such people give you any investment tips! SAVE

I'm very, very disappointed... I signed up on the advice of a friend, hoping to be well informed and advised. Accidentally ordered the wrong package and only saw referral courses! It could neither be changed nor revoked in the first week! Should book more courses.

Casino Nickel

It's just network marketing. In this case, however, with cryptocurrencies, i.e. gambling. Mr. Nickel is well-known in the relevant field, so it's not surprising that the company is registered in Hong Kong. All coin tips or private sales that I know of are currently in the basement. That's why it's probably pretty quiet around the Infinity disciples on Instagram at the moment. It's definitely not being touted and acclaimed like it was a few months ago.

Calls calls calls... who is daily from...

Calls calls calls... if you want to be showered on every day by over-motivated speakers, this is the place for you... what the whole bunch up there is mainly making money with is building networks, your money, so to speak, which you invest to participate in private sales that hardly bring any income.. until now they say 🤔 ... so chat up your friends and acquaintances and tell them crypto is the future while the whole market goes down the drain.. awesome! My summary after 6 months of membership.. Money better drunk etc

Extremely dishonest company

Extremely dishonest company. Writes to potential customers via Facebook and pretends a private exchange, only to then want to sell you cryptocurrencies. The contact consists of predefined and rehearsed sentence modules.

Corresponds to all clichés known from network marketing.

Stay away from Be-Infinity

Total disappointment

Came to Infinity 3 days ago and booked a package for 1 month first, but my upline wasn't very enthusiastic about it and started stressing with me and is now ignoring me, so he just wanted my money. Nobody invited me to the groups or told me how to participate in the presales. I wrote to the support 2 days ago but still haven't gotten an answer. I absolutely cannot recommend it so far. If anything changes, I'll update this, I hope so.

I was with Infinity for 6 months and have...

I was with Infinity for 6 months and it wasn't worth paying so much money for too little added value.

It's all about recruiting new members.

The trading signals are bullshit, the presales weren't worth it either and I didn't even look at the training videos... everything is also available for free on the Internet. If you want to start with crypto and don't know when and how, there are better options than with Be Infinity.

For 3 people I referred I got a ridiculous $74.70 = €68. We all paid a total of $2400. That's a complete joke and I can't, with the best will in the world, recommend it to anyone.

Infinity is a multilevel network...

Infinity is a multilevel network marketing company. You have a product in this case crypto and paying members.

If coin tips and presales are as lucrative as you say, why are you so obsessed with recruiting new members? Question answered... the whole thing is collapsing like a house of cards.

These are not financial experts but laypeople who make ignorant decisions about the future. Caution Private sales can lead to total loss and the learning material is available for free on YouTube. Better stay away from this company from Hong Kong. The good reviews are from paying members who have to do this to find new people who in turn are paying.

Only the founders got rich, and that was with your money and not with crypto.

Inifinity = well...heavy-heavy MLM...

In my opinion, missed the target. Infinity is just an AutoShip network and only focuses on selling. Customers who don't sell are treated the same way -> Watch the videos, otherwise I don't have time for you. In their community, too, it's all about duplicating themselves. In terms of content, Infinity offers really little for its training. These are such absolute basics that you can and should teach everyone personally...

If someone is looking for real added value, be it in the crypto area, training, further education etc.. Inifinity should not be the first port of call. I'm of the opinion that you're looking for someone who takes the time for someone. A company is not the wrong way, but it is not the best way either.

I don't like anything about Inifinity. I don't care about the private deals either. Participating in it also requires a certain amount of investment and knowledge.
